BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description. I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view, for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE.

All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. February 24

For Sale or Lease,

THE following tracts of land in Charles county, Maryland: one lying on the Potomac, at the mouth of Pomonkey creek, containing three hundred and forty acres, about 16 miles from Alexandria, the larger portion level land, of a stiff soil, well adapted to the cultivation of corn, wheat and tobacco, and equal in fertility to any in the neighborhood. On this farm is one of the most elegant sites for building of all those fine heights which border the Potomac, commanding the most extensive view of the adjacent country, both in Virginia and Maryland, for more than twenty miles up and down the river: located in a genteel neighborhood, it would make an agreeable residence, and from its proximity to market, with the advantage of the best navigation, an extremely profitable farm.—The tenant's houses would accommodate the negroes for its cultivation.

A Tract, about one mile back from the former, containing 334 acres, a large portion in wood, white and red oak, and some chesnut; the remainder a tenement in tolerable repair, the whole a high stiff soil, similar to the one above mentioned.

A Tract, lying at the mouth of Mattawoman Creek, about 25 miles from Alexandria, the whole first rate flat river land, now completely enclosed.—On this tract is a noted fishery, called Rum Point, at which there has been cleared upwards of two thousand dollars per annum, and where independent of the fish sold on the shore, there might be put up from one to two thousand barrels every season; besides the profits of the fishery, the advantage of manuring the farm with the offal of the shore, the whole, with a small portion of industry, might be made to produce ten barrels of corn per acre. On the shore, are a dwelling house, houses for holding salt, and curing any quantity of fish, and for the accommodation of hands.

A Tract, lying about 11 miles from the last mentioned, containing 236 acres, more than 200 of which are in wood, and would cut from 25 to 30 cords per acre, within one mile of the river, where wood has rarely sold for less than five dollars per cord. It will be divided into 50 or 25 acre lots, to suit purchasers. If preferred, the wood will be sold standing, for so much per acre.

If not disposed of, previous to the first day of Sept. next, the above mentioned arable lands, will be leased out, upon advantageous terms, for five or seven years, at the option of the lessees.

Application to be made to the subscriber, residing near the head of Mattawoman Creek, Charles county, Maryland.

A FRIEND OF THE CONSTITUTION.—NO. V.

With as little regard to the text on which he comments as was shown in the instances mentioned in the preceding number, Hampden says, "The court is pleased to remind us with the same view" (that is with a view to a construction that shall extend the powers of congress) "that it is a constitution we are expounding."

He is so very reasonable as not to deny that it is a constitution. Consequently he does not, on this occasion, charge the court with using an inaccurate expression. Its offensiveness consists only in the intention with which it is used.—This criminal intention exists only in the fertile imagination of Hampden. The court makes no allusion whatever to that enlarged construction which he ascribes to it.

In answer to the argument that the clause under consideration so narrowed the powers of congress as to prohibit the passage of any law without which any given power could be executed, the court, after showing that the word necessary did not always import the last degree of necessity, or that "sheer necessity" of which Hampden speaks, adds, "in its construction, the subject, the context, the intention of the person using it, are all to be taken into view." And I stop to ask if any fair mind can reject this rule of exposition? This "provision," continues the court, "is made in a constitution intended to endure for ages to come—and, consequently, to be adapted to the various crisis of human affairs. To have prescribed the means by which government should, in all future time, execute its powers, would have been to change entirely the character of the instrument, and to give it the properties of a legal code."

The passage is too long to be quoted entire, but I say with confidence that it does not contain the most distant allusion to any extension, by construction of the powers of congress. Its sole object is to remind us that a constitution cannot possibly enumerate the means by which the powers of government are to be carried into execution.

The correctness of this position, Hampden does not venture to deny. He distinctly admits it; but thinks it necessary to add, (as if the contrary had been insinuated by the supreme court) "that the constitution establishes a criterion in relation to them, and that criterion should be the law to the several departments in making the selection.

The whole opinion of the court proceeds upon this basis, as on a truth not to be controverted. The principle it labors to establish is, not that congress may select means beyond the limits of the constitution, but means within those limits.

The grand objection made to the opinion so bitterly inculpated is, that it construes the clause which has been so frequently repeated, as an enlargement of the enumerated powers of congress, and contends, throughout, for an extension of these powers beyond the import of the words. To support this objection, various passages are selected from it. I have reviewed them all; and have, I think demonstrated that no one of them will bear the construction for which Hampden contends. I do not fear to be contradicted by any rational man who will read the opinion with a real desire to understand it, when I say that it contains not a single sentence in support of these doctrines. In form and in substance, it is a refutation of the argument that this clause narrows the right of congress to execute its powers; and it claims only that, in ascertaining the true extent of those powers, the constitution should be fairly construed.

Why has Hampden attempted thus plainly to pervert this opinion, and to ascribe to it doctrines which it clearly rejects? He knows well that prejudices once impressed on the public mind, are not easily removed; and that the progress of truth and reason is slow.

I should perhaps trespass too much on the patience of the public, were I to advert with the same minuteness to every thing said by Hampden on the subject of the means by which congress may constitutionally exercise its enumerated powers, or to cite from the opinion of the court the several passages to which he alludes with disapprobation, and which he mistates either directly or by insinuation. I have examined them all with attention, and I say, without fear of contradiction, that the general principles maintained by the supreme court are, that the constitution may be construed as if the clause which has been so much discussed, had been entirely omitted. That the powers of congress are expressed in terms which, without its aid, enable and require the legislature to execute them, and of course, to take means for their execution. That the choice of these means devolve on the legislature, whose right, and whose duty it is, to adopt those which are most advantageous to the people, provided they be within the limits of the constitution. Their constitutionality depends on their being the natural, direct, and appropriate means, or the known and usual means, for the execution of the given power.

In no single instance does the court admit the unlimited power of congress to adopt any means whatever, and thus to pass the limits prescribed by the constitution. Not only is the discretion claimed for the legislature in the selection of its means, always limited in terms, to such as are appropriate, but the court expressly says, "should congress under the pretext of executing its powers, pass laws for the accomplishment of objects, not entrusted to the government, it would become the painful duty of this tribunal, should a case requiring such a decision come before it, to say that such an act was not the law of the land."

How then can Hampden justify to his country, or even to himself, the declarations "that the court had resolved to put down all discussions respecting the powers of the government in future, by a judicial coup de main; to give a general letter of attorney to the future legislators of the union; and to tread under foot all those parts and articles of the constitution which had been heretofore deemed to set limits to the power of the federal legislature. That in fact "the court had granted to congress unlimited powers under the pretext of a discretion in selecting means!"

In a grand effort to impair the constitution of our country by construction, the doctrine "that the end will justify the means," seems not to be entirely exploded.

Hampden is much dissatisfied with the declaration of the court "that the general government, though limited in its powers, is supreme within the sphere of its action." He "does not understand this jargon. This word supreme," he says, "does not sound well in a government which acts under a limited constitution."

This writer, the least of whose charges against the supreme court is inaccuracy of language, would seem to have confounded supremacy with despotism. The word "supreme" means "highest in authority"; and there must be a highest in authority under a limited, as well as under an unlimited constitution. Is not the government of the union, "within its sphere of action," "supreme," or "highest in authority"? This is certainly the fact, and is as certainly the language of the constitution. That instrument declares, that "This constitution and the laws of the United States, made in pursuance thereof," &c. "shall be the supreme law of the land." The states, the state judges, and the people, are bound by it, "any thing in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding." Is not that power supreme which can give the supreme law?

The constitution may be changed, any constitution may be changed. But while it remains what it is, the government "while moving within its proper sphere," is supreme. What authority is above it?

This "jargon" may grate harshly on the ears of Hampden, and he may be unaccustomed to it; but it is the language of truth, and of the constitution, and his displeasure will not banish it. The language of nature and of truth would grate harshly on the ears of an Eastern despot, unaccustomed to its words. He would not like "such jargon". But it would not be, on that account, inaccurate or improper.

In the continued spirit of misrepresentation, Hampden says, "The court is of opinion, that the right to establish a bank stands on the same foundation with that to exact oaths of office;" and also, that "the denial of a right to establish banks" "carries with it the denial of that of annexing punishments to crimes."

I do not deny that the cases bear a strong analogy to each other; but I do deny that the court has made the statement ascribed to it; and therefore, I do not deem it incumbent on me, in this mere justification of a judicial opinion, to show the fallacy of Hampden's distinctions between them, or to prove propositions, however true they may be, which that opinion does not assert.

The counsel for the state of Maryland, we are told, had contended that the clause which Hampden asserts to be "tautologous and redundant," "limits the right of congress to make laws for the execution of the powers granted by the constitution, to such as are indispensable, and without which the power would be nugatory."

The court rejects this construction, and in reasoning against it, says, "If we apply this principle to any of the powers of the government, we shall find it so pernicious in its operation, that we shall be compelled to discard it." The court then proceeds to show that this principle, if recognized, would prove many of those acts, the constitutionality of which, are universally acknowledged, such as the act prescribing the oaths of office, &c. to be usurpations. The argument is, avowedly, urged to disprove a proposition supported by counsel in the cause, as all essential in the construction of the constitution, but which Hampden expressly abandons as unsustainable.

He is equally incorrect when he says, "The supreme court is farther of opinion, that the power of incorporating banks is justified by the admitted right of congress to establish governments for the vacant territories of the United States."

The court had shown by a long, and, I think, an accurate course of reasoning, that, "if the end be within the scope of the constitution, all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited, but consist with the letter and the spirit of the constitution, are constitutional."

But it had been urged that a bank, should it even be a measure of this description, is placed beyond the reach of congress, because the legislature of the union has no power to erect a corporation.

The court proceeds to consider this argument; and, in order to show its fallacy, proves incontestably, that the act of incorporation is the mere annexation of a quality to a measure, to the doing which, if the measure itself be proper, the constitution creates no objection. In illustration of this argument, reference is made to the territorial governments which are corporations. This reference is not made for the purpose of showing that a bank is as absolutely necessary to the union, as a government to a territory; but of showing that if an instrument be proper in itself, the circumstance that an act of incorporation is essential to its efficacy, creates no constitutional objection to it.

After a long and perspicuous review of the arguments which had been urged against the act of congress which was under consideration, the court proceeds to the act itself, and places its constitutionality simply on the ground, that a bank is "a convenient, a useful, and an essential instrument in the prosecution of the fiscal operations of the government." "That all those who have been concerned in the administration of the finances, have concurred in representing its importance and necessity."

The court may be mistaken in the "propriety and necessity" of this instrument. I do not think so; but others may honestly entertain this opinion. Be this as it may, the grand objection to the opinion, the reason assigned for all the malignant calumnies which have been heaped upon the judicial department, is, not that the court has decided erroneously, but that its decision is placed on principles which prostrate all the barriers to the unlimited power of the general government. That it "has made a declaratory decision that congress has power to bind us in all cases whatsoever."

We had before seen how totally untrue this allegation is, so far as it relies for support on the general reasoning of the court; and we now see how untrue it is, so far as it relies on the particular reason expressly given for the decision. That particular reason is, that a bank "is a convenient, a useful, an essential instrument in the prosecution of the fiscal operations of the government, the importance and necessity of which" is so strong that the best judges of that importance and necessity have concurred in representing; and the most intelligent original enemies of the measure have admitted it.

Hampden himself seems half inclined to make this admission. He says, "there is no doubt but many of those who voted for the bank, did it under what was supposed the peculiar pressure of the times. It was not adopted in relation to ordinary times, nor on the ground of its being a constitutional measure."

If "the pressure of the times" when this bill passed, rendered it necessary, I am at a loss to conceive how it can be repugnant to that constitution which was made for all times. The peculiar circumstances of the moment may render a measure more or less wise, but cannot render it more or less constitutional.

I have claimed too much of the public attention already, to be equally minute on the remaining observations of Hampden. On his argument therefore respecting the necessity of the bank, I will make only one remark, the correctness of which will be perceived by all who read that argument. He requires that a measure, to be constitutional, must be so indispensable that without it the power cannot be executed. This principle, if at all sustainable, can only be sustained by contending that the clause in which the word "necessary" is found, abridges the powers congress would otherwise have possessed. This construction he has expressly surrendered. He cannot be permitted to avail himself of a construction which he, in terms, abandons.

A FRIEND OF THE CONSTITUTION.

From the N. Y. Com. Advertiser, June 30.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By the arrival of the ship Juno, Captain Doak, in 37 days from Liverpool, we have received from our attentive Correspondents, London Papers to the evening of the 21st of May; Lloyds Lists to the 18th; New Price Current to the 19th; General Shipping and Commercial List to the 18th; Liverpool Bill of Entry to the 21st; and Liverpool papers to the 22nd—all inclusive.

Paris papers to the 18th of May, reached London on the 21st. in which it is stated that on the preceding day, to use the language of the Courier, the impudent petition of certain obscure, and even feigned, individuals praying for the recal of those banished traitors, whose monstrous perfidy in 1815, filled Europe with indignation and horror, were rejected by the Chamber of Deputies. The debate, though short, was animated and interesting. M. Cotton, the reporter of the Committee appointed to examine the said petitions, delivered an admirable discourse, in which he dwelt with great emphasis upon the abuses of the right of petition. The consequences of that abuse, he said, if not timely checked, would place the chamber under the empire of petitions, and the Members would have little else to do than to sit and deliberate upon every petty or factious topic, which an individual, or individuals, chose to couch in the form of a petition. With respect to the measure solicited by the petitioners, the sole argument of the report was, that the right of extending mercy to the exiles, belonged to the Crown, and that it did not become the Chamber to interfere with that right. M. Canmartin made a speech in defence of ALL the exiles, and including, therefore, the thrice perjured regicides, which was overflowing with revolutionary love and kindness; a canting appeal to sympathy and sensibility, in behalf of men, whom the moral voice of the world has pronounced to be unutterably infamous.—The whining oration was indignantly answered by the keeper of the Seals, who pronounced, repeatedly, that whatever clemency might hereafter be extended towards the temporarily banished by the generosity of the Crown, the regicides—the relapsed regicides—were exiled forever. This declaration was received with shouts of applause from the whole Chamber, with the exception of about twenty Ultraliberals on the left, whose tongues seemed frozen by the energetic manner of the Minister. In one part of his speech he exclaimed, that, "the King could not without compromising his own dignity, the repose of France and of Europe, restore to France the assassins of his brother, the assassins of his predecessor, the murderers of the martyr-King."

Dutch papers to the 19th of May, were also received in London, one of which states, that the new levy of 40,000 men, will raise the French army to the number of 166,000 exclusively of the gen d'armes, and the sedentary companies, as they are called amounting, together, to 20,000 men Thus the army will still be below the proposed peace establishment of 200,000 men. It is said to be the intention of the French government to raise the army to 290,000 men (one hundredth part of the entire population. It is judged that the maintainance of this force, with the necessary, and existing fortresses, will not exceed the ability of France."

Letters from the Cape of Good Hope as late as the month of March, confirm the previous intelligence of the rising of a large body of the Caffres; but as the British troops and the population of the country were in arms, it was hoped, that they would soon be defeated.

Marinet and Cantillon, who have been tried in Paris, for the attempt to assassinate the duke of Wellington, have been acquitted. The mystery of the affair, it is said is rather darkened than cleared by the trial. The Advocate General at the close of the trial, gave them passports to any part of Europe. Marinet declared his intention to retire to Switzerland.

An interesting debate arose in the British Parliament on the 18th of May, on a motion offered by Mr. Tierney "that the house go into Committee on the state of the Nation." The motion was finally rejected by a majority of 179.

The celebrated Wright, the pedestrian, lately walked twelve hundred miles in twenty days. The last mile he performed in twelve minutes, and appeared very little fatigued.

A long and animated debate occurred on the 17th of May in the House of Lords, on a motion for the Committee to examine the existing laws affecting the Roman Catholic part of the Community. The motion was rejected by a majority of 41.

Nearly two million ounces of Silver were drawn from the Bank of England, by the East India Company, on the 15th of May, and shipped to Bombay, Bengal, and China.

The Persian Ambassador was introduced to the Prince Regent at Carlton House on the 20th of May. He was escorted from his lodgings with as much splendor and parade as were the allied Sovereigns some years ago.—The following list of presents, brought by the Ambassador to the Prince Regent is given in the Courier of the 21st.—

A gold enamelled looking glass, opening with a portrait of his Persian majesty; the object of which was to exhibit at one view the portraits of two sovereigns; the one in painting, the other by reflection; and around which were poetical allusions.

A gold enamelled box.

A magnificent costly sword, celebrated in Persia for the exquisite temper of its blade; the sheath ornamented with emeralds, rubies and diamonds.

A string of pearls.

Carpets of Cashmere shawl, composed of four distinct pieces; the principal carpet is in length 17 Persian yards, breadth 9 yards. They were manufactured for the king of the Afghans, who sent them as a present to the Shah, who, without hesitation, sent them as the greatest rarity he possessed to the prince regent. In Persia they were inestimable, such a specimen of manufacture having been there hitherto unknown.

Two carpets of Herat.

A large painting of his Persian majesty.

Ten magnificent Cashmere shawls, of various sizes and denominations.

The Arabian horses brought by his excellency to England as a present to the prince regent, were drawn up in the court yard.

It is stated that the ambassador speaks the English language with great fluency, and that the prince regent and his court were delighted with his appropriate address, on entering the audience chamber, and his subsequent conversation.

English Stocks in London, May 21.—Bank stock, 236½ to 237; 3 per cent reduced, 70 3-8 to 69 7-8; 3 per cent cons. 71¼ to 70 -8; 4 per cents, 89 1-8 87 7-8; 5 per cents, 104¼ 1-8 5-8; cons. for ac. 71 1-8 1-4 70 5-8.

An obliging commercial friend has favored us with the following letter:

Liverpool, May 22.

Our cotton market remains depressed, and the price is rather lower than last week. The very heavy imports this month (say about 67,000 bags of all sorts) are landing, and as upland are most in demand, they are brought in the market even before they are stowed in the warehouse; and the pressing to sell is almost universal. The sales of upland last week were 5,500 bags, and this week 4000. Of the sales this week 841 were from 11¼d a 12d; 163o at 12¼; 953 at 12½; 405 at 12¾d; and about 2oo at 13d. The sales of Orleans this week are, 1o49, of which 514 were from 11½ to 12¾d; 525 are at 13d; the remainder 13¼ to 14¼d. except 10 dunbars gin 16½d. A part of these sales are for export, and part on speculation—the estimate of the consumption of uplands from this market at 25oo per week; but while the imports continue so heavy, and the pressure for money so great, there seems little, if any prospect of a rise—and yet we cannot but think the consumption will enhance prices at the close of the session, and it is still our opinion, that shipments made from your side at corresponding prices with our present markets would be safe.

The bank of England will no doubt resume specie payments according to the plan laid down by the committee of the House of Commons, which you will see in the papers, and this fear has no doubt had a very strong influence on the price of every article of merchandize, and whatever you do, as connected with this country, you should make your own calculations, as to its effect. The price of coffee has gone down from 15os. to 8os. Tobacco, ashes, and naval stores are all very dull at our quotations. There is no prospect of the ports opening for wheat and flour this year. The weather is very fine, and crops promising. Referring to quotations, we remain, very respectfully, your friends, (Signed) A. & S. RICHARDS.

Uplands 11½ a 13d.—Orleans 11½ a 14¼. Islands 2s a 2s 6d.—Tobacco 3d a 7d.—Rice 2o a 25s.—Flour 28s a 38s.—Pot Ashes 39s a 42s.—Pearl 45s a 48s.—Tar 13s a 15s.—Turpentine 1os a 12s.

Corn Exchange, May 21.

We have had no fresh supply of wheat since Monday, but a tolerably large quantity was left over from Wednesday's market which met heavy sale this morning in consequence of the price of flour having been lowered 5s per sack, and what little was disposed of was at a decline of full 2s. per quarter. Barley, peas and beans, are nearly unsaleable, except at very low prices.—Oats are 1s cheaper, the supply being very great, and the consumers unwilling to purchase.

From the London New Price Current, of May 18

Cotton.—The speculative demand for Cotton, and the request for export continue very extensive; it is reported about 1ooo bags Surats have been taken during the last week on speculation, the prices have not transpired, but it is believed the parcels purchased are at an advance of ½d. per lb. on the prices current about ten days ago: the sales for export since our last amount to nearly 9oo bags, and the purchases of Pernambuco Cotton would have been much more extensive, but none of good quality are at present offering; the particulars are 80 Pernambuco good quality 19½d. inferior 18½d.; 5o good Bahias 17½; 2o good Maranhams 17d.; 5o good Boweds 12¾d. a 13d.; 140 Surats 7¼d. a 8¼d.; 42o Bengals good 6¼d.; ordinary txir shipping quality 6d. a 6 1-8d.; a few very ordinary 5¼d.; all these were sold in bond for shipping; the only purchases of Cotton, duty paid, were 8o Paras 15½d. and a few Bahias 18d

Sugar.—The prices of Sugar continue to decline; a reduction of 2s a 3s may be stated.

Coffee.—There were few purchases of coffee by private contract last week.

Corn.—The weather has continued fine for several weeks, the reports of the growing crop are exceedingly favorable, and as the supplies of English wheat to yesterday's market were large, the trade was very heavy at a further decline of 4s. per quarter; the foreign wheat may be stated at a similar reduction, but, from the few sales of the latter, our quotations are nearly nominal.—The supply of Barley was not extensive, yet the sales were heavy, the Malsters having all nearly finished working; the samples of Foreign may be stated at a decline of 4s. per quarter. English 2s lower; the low qualities for grinding, met rather a ready sale, at prices nearly the former currency; there were considerable supplies of English oats at market, and as several cargoes of Foreign, were also reported, the sales were heavy at a reduction of 2s on the prices of last week.—Beans were in large supply, and may be stated at a decline of 2s.—The Clover seed trade appears to be quite over for the season.

Tobacco.—The demand for tobacco continues limited. The stock of Kentucky reduced by the recent exportations to about 15oo hhds.; the stock of Virginia 14,o64 hhds; Maryland 1780 hhds.

Rice.—There was some demand last week; Java was reported to be sold at 13s, and for a parcel of Italian, in bond there were several offers, but as yet we believe no actual sale; fine Carolina in bond, realized 29s.

Turpentine, Barilla, &c. by public sale 24th inst.—55 tons Teneriffe Barilla 26s 10s and 28l; damaged 19 and 2o. bags, Orchella Seed from Lauzorotte, in bond 198 a 2oo, duty paid 203 a 206. 638 bbls. Rough Turpentine, without allowance 13s 9d and 14s.

Skins.—By public sale this forenoon—about 5837 fine salted fur seal skins, just arrived from the southern fishery, 14s 6d a 30s 6d and 4s 6d a 11s 1d.

Oils.—The prices of Greenland oil are little varied; Spermaceti has been sold at our advanced quotations in consequence of the great scarcity; several arrivals are, however, looked for. Galipoli and seed oils may be stated at a considerable reduction

Hemp, Flax, and Tallow.—The quotations of tallow continue nominal, there is no business doing. Hemp is rather giving way, Flax meets a heavy sale at our quotations.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas. He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give the above reward for apprehending him, so that I get him again. AGNES DUNDAS.

JOHN HOPKINS

Hill and Dale, April 20.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. The estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25

IS known to have been kidnapped from a field near Germantown, between the hours of 12 and 2 o'clock, on the 30th ult. whilst at work alone, a Free Black Man, named HENRY HUDSON, aged between 21 and 22 years, of the height of five feet five inches, very black complexion and dark eyes, has a scar under his left arm, between the wrist and elbow, occasioned by the cut of an axe.

He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.

He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.

Any information respecting him will be thankfully received. Keepers of turnpike gates, toll bridges, and taverns, are particularly requested to give such information as may be in their power.

The above reward will be cheerfully paid on conviction of the perpetrators of this flagrant outrage upon the rights of a freeborn citizen of the United States.

PROSPECTUS

Of a new periodical work to be published in the city of Washington, entitled the

Washington Theological REPERTORY.

EDITORS { Rev. Wm Hawley, Washington,
Rev. Wm. H. Wilmer, Alexandria,
Rev. Oliver Norris, Alexandria,
Rev. Reuel Keith, Georgetown,

Assisted by several other literary gentlemen of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

IF any apology were necessary for this undertaking, it may be found in the fact, that there is no publication on a similar plan, in all that section of our country lying south of New-York, and but one in the whole of the United States. It has been matter of equal surprize and regret, that the Episcopal Church should be so far behind other Christian denominations, in similar efforts to disseminate the principles of religion and piety. At a period like the present, when the Lord is preparing his way on earth, by the most remarkable efforts of human agency, and the most wonderful operations of his providence and grace—when we perceive in every part of Christendom, a praise-worthy emulation to share in the glorious work of filling the earth with the knowledge of the only true God, and his Son Jesus Christ; it would seem criminal for any to withhold their exertions, however feeble, in the great enterprize of human happiness and salvation. The editors have, therefore, felt it their duty to make this humble effort to supply this acknowledged deficiency on the part of the church in this section of the country, and to bear their share in the common exertions of Christians to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom. And having obtained the services of a gentleman, in whose talents and principles they have confidence, whose time will be wholly devoted to the superintendence of the work, they feel encouraged to solicit the patronage of the public.

The publecation will be conducted under the immediate inspection and control of the above named editors, who will form a committee to review every article intended for publication. The principles upon which it will be conducted are those of the bible, as illustrated in the articles, Liturgy and Homilies of the Protestant Episcopal Church. As members of this church the editors will feel bound to support the Apostolical character of her institutions, the pious tendency of her rites and ceremonies, and the evangelical nature of her doctrines But in these, and all other discussions, they hope never to loose sight of that great law of charity which teaches us to "preserve the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Acting upon those catholic principles, so long and so successively pursued by "The Christian Observer," their chief object will be to inculcate sound theological knowledge, and to delineate and recommend pure and vital religion. They trust therefore, that while the members of every Christian denomination may find something edifying and instructive, none will discover any just cause for offence in the pages of this work. General subjects of biblical criticism, practical illustrations of scriptural truth, the biography of illustrious persons, evidences of the truth of revelation, essays on the history and polity of the church, reviews of interesting publications, religious, literary and philosophical intelligence—in short, whatever is connected with the promotion of religion, humanity and literature, will find a place in this repository

The testimony of experience supersedes the necessity of dwelling on the advantages of a periodical publication on the plan proposed. Its obvious tendency will be to render the various departments of religious knowledge more easy and accessible, and give a more ready currency and wider circulation, to those great truths which involve the present welfare and future destiny of man.

It will tend powerfully to stimulate the exertions of the editors, and console them under the difficulties attendant on the prosecution of this work, amidst many other avocations, should it prove the means under the blessing of God, of enriching any of its readers with the saving knowledge of Christ and prepare them for a participation in the felicity and glory of his heavenly kingdom. With this hope they commit it into his hands, and confidently solicit their brethren of the clergy and laity to assist them in carrying into effect the objects of the undertaking.
